Addison Board of Education Approves Senior List of Forty-two

Discuss reduction of board membership from nine to six—Dr. J. Hillis Miller of Keuka announced as commencement speaker—Plan lawn for old grammar school—Bills audited.

Board of Education members discussed the reduction in membership of the board from 9 to 6 at the monthly session held Tuesday night in the office of Principal Irving R. Gladstone. At the annual meeting a proposition will be submitted to school voters reducing the membership from nine to six members. The measure was proposed by Dr. H. E. Auringer and concurred in by Andrew W. Knebel. It now develops that two members of the board, whose terms hold over, are ill and unable to attend sessions for the time being. The discussion centered around what would constitute a quorum. No action was taken.

Dr. J. Hillis Miller, president of Keuka College, has been chosen as the commencement orator. The board approved a list of 42 seniors for graduation and 7 other members of the class must pass regents to be approved. Comprehensive tests will be given Friday, June 21 for those desiring state scholarships. Regents' marks formerly admitted a candidate for a scholarship. The board members approved the purchasing of four new Underwood typewriters to replace machines now in use at a cost of $40 each, plus turn-in value.

Parents' Day June 6

Principal Irving R. Gladstone stated that several girls from Addison High are invited to participate in a "play day program" in Corning. The annual open house in the school, known as "Patrons' and Parents' Day" will be held Thursday, June 6 when all facilities of the school will be open to parents thruout the day and an assembly program will be given in the evening.

Vice principal Kenneth McCaig was given permission to institute a students' saving bank for seventh and eighth grade pupils. Mr. Gladstone announced that baccalaureate will be held Sunday, June 23 in the high school with the Rev. Nicholas Van Vossaboon as the speaker. Commencement exercises will be held Tuesday, June 25.

State Department Home Economics inspectors approved the setup in the local school but recommended a clothes closet in the home economics room for use to complete projects of the students.

President Maurice E. Miller reported on a Central School Board meeting in Ithaca. He stated that the 25 per cent state aid cut is not to be feared for only schools which have been extravagant will receive the cut. He asked the Insurance Committee to secure insurance coverage for the NYA students as he learned in Ithaca that the Board is liable on a $1500 minimum, so many schools dropped NYA. Now the insurance coverage is on the actual earnings.

Mr. Knebel asked that grounds funds be used to seed the grammar school grounds and care for the lawn in the rear of the building. The Board thanked Mr. Orr, local contractor, for donating his services and material to repairs in the building.

Mr. Knebel reported on the finances of the Albany trip of the high school orchestra and Mr. Miller said it was gratifying the way the community responded to the appeal for funds for the trip.

There were several informal discussions over the inconsiderate dumping of refuse by local people, along the highway at the dumping grounds, over the increase of state and county taxes, the number of homes being purchased here by Painted Post and Corning people and street repairs.

Mayor Sisto stated that someone had been dumping ashes at the dump and putting them near the front of the lot which made it inconvenient for others to get into the dumping lot. He offered the cellars on his property on South street near the creek as ash dumping grounds.

Another load of patching will be purchased for the work now being done on the village streets. Mr. Sisto said that the local streets are in better shape than in many nearby communities, considering the small amount which has been spent on them.

Funeral For Frank Carpenter Held Saturday

Funeral services for G. Frank Carpenter, whose death occurred Wednesday night, were held from the family home on Maple street at two o'clock Saturday afternoon. The Rev. N. Van Cossaboon, pastor of the Methodist Church officiated and burial was made in Addison Rural Cemetery.

Although Mr. Carpenter had been in poor health for the past five year, the end came suddenly, as the result of a stroke less than an hour previous. Mr. Carpenter submitted to an operation early in the winter but had gradually improved and had been able to get about the house with crutches. He was confined to his bed about nine days before his death which occurred at 11:20 Wednesday evening, May 28.

G. Frank Carpenter was born in Academy Corners, October 30, 1866, the son of Lorentus and Lois Seeley Carpenter. He was united in marriage February 18,1891, to Miss Mary Harrison of Lindley and they made their home in Academy Corners until 1894 when they purchased a farm in Lindley. They came to Addison in 1903 and had resided here ever since except for about three years when they made their home in Binghamton.

After leaving the farm in 1903 Mr. Carpenter took up painting and paperhanging and carpenter work and it may be safely stated had done work of one kind or another in a good share of the houses in Addison during those years. Being a careful and painstaking workman his services were much in demand.

Mr. Carpenter was a member of the Addison Methodist Church and the Men's Class of that church, and was a fine type of citizen. Always cheerful and possessing a friendly personality he had many friends throughout the village who regret his passing.

His survivors include his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Frances Abbott of Pulaski and Mrs. Lois Carpenter of Kew Gardens, L. I., and one sister, Mrs. Belle Clark of Academy Corners. A son, Lorentus Carpenter, died in 1913.

New Steuben County Jury System Explained to Ad Club Members

Wilbur Knapp, Bath attorney and former local resident speaks at Wednesday luncheon—Organization asks cooperation of merchants for a sales promotion day—John Davis chairman.

Explanation of the proposed jury selection system in Steuben County was outlined for Advertising Club members by Attorney Wilbur Knapp, Bath, Wednesday. The luncheon meeting was held in the Baptist Church parlors. Tom Lattimer was presented as a guest by E. C. Smith and Ralph Dykins introduced his son-in-law Floyd Mitchell, now a resident of Addison. The program opened with prayer by the Rev. Russell O Kirsch, songs were led by the Rev. John V. Axtell and the closing prayer was given by the Rev. Mondula C. Johns. Mrs. Frank Kelly, former club pianist, was presented and played for the closing hymn. Miss Janet Taylor, club pianist, accompanied for singing.

President Milton Crane announced that Winfield S. Long has accepted the chairmanship for the summer picnic committee and will be assisted by Bligh Chatfield, Stuart Bean and Edwin C. Smith.

There will be a sales day committee meeting Monday night at 7:30 o'clock. John B. Davis is chairman. Other members are Jay Mose and Carl Rouse. Merchants of the community will be invited to meet with the committee to make plans for the sales promotion day program.

Judge Smith, program chairman for the day, prefaced his introduction by stating that the speaker is a former Addisonite, was graduated from high school here with honors and married a local girl and is one of the outstanding lawyers in western New York. He then presented Attorney Knapp, now of Bath.

Mr. Knapp spoke of his boyhood here until 1915 when he was graduated from Syracuse University and entered law. He paid tribute to Walter Goff, Samuel C. Erwin, Charles Brewster, Charles Crane, Dr. Amos Stiker and to Judge Smith and told of their encouragement given him.

He then spoke of the questionnaires to be sent to prospective jurors in Steuben County beginning in July. The shocking antiquated method formerly in use, and which was criticized at a recent trial and which proved so costly to the county was explained by Attorney Knapp. He said there were many ineligibles on the list.

Attorney Knapp continued in part: "The Steuben County Bar Association has made a study of our system and also of the jury commissioner system of Chemung county. Here the juror is chosen by the supervisor, town clerk and assessor. Not everyone eligible is chosen by the supervisor. In Chemung the commissioner of jurors takes entire list of eligibles, interviews each one as to qualifications and scruples against death penalty and the cost did not exceed $2,500 annually. It saves mileage and pay for ineligibles and is liked by county, attorneys and judges.

"The Steuben Bar Association recommended this to the supervisors. They had other ideas and did not want to create a salaried office. However they have not gone far enough. This is no criticism of the supervisors for they are taking steps in the right direction to improve the system here. But, if you do not answer the questionnaire they cannot compel you to, the force of law is not there. A commissioner can force you to answer questions as to your eligibility. However when you get the questionnaire answer it by all means. The [illegible] quires the cooperation of [illegible]

Attorney Knapp then answered questions relative to various phases of the proposed supervisory recommendation and outlined exemptions which were printed in the Advertiser May 16.

THE DUMP AGAIN

A local citizen approached the writer last week relative to the village dump at the west end of the village.

"It seems to me", this person said, "that people should be told not to throw papers all over the place. Local authorities have done a good job cleaning up the dump by pushing the cans and rubbish back from the road, but some people persist in throwing bunches of loose papers there and naturally they blow all over the place making a miserable mess".

We agree with our reader that the public should have more sense than to scatter papers where they will blow all over the country highway. We have at different times expressed rather strong views in this column regarding the heedless selfishness of persons who litter the edge of the highway with rubbish instead of tossing it back in the swamp.

One might expect such carelessness among some of the "poor white trash" that live in some of the southern mountain districts of the country, but this is supposed to be an enlightened community in an enlightened state. We spend thousands of dollars of taxpayers' money in Addison every year giving schooling to the children of the community only to find that those who are old enough to drive and well enough off to own an automobile have never learned the first lesson in community neatness.

One of the surprising things about this is that some persons who have enough pride to clip their own lawns and dress attractively, will forget all their manners when misusing the village dump. Why any person can be so devoid of a sense of community pride as to let his carelessness contribute to the disgraceful appearance of a well-[illegible] highway is something hard to under-[illegible]

WANTED—A BUSINESS PRESIDENT

Heartless though this viewpoint may be it appears as if some of the most radical New Dealers in Washington regard the present European War crisis as a lucky straw on which to hang their hopes of a third term for Mr. Roosevelt. They seem to base their demands for a "draft Roosevelt" movement on the fallacy that this country has only produced one man capable of handling the problems which beset us.

That this premise is a fallacy of widest measure is shown by a mere glance of the record of Roosevelt campaign promises and Roosevelt achievements. Before election the President promised to cure the unemployment problem and to cut federal government expenses by twenty-five per cent. During his seven years in office he has not put the American people back to work and federal expenditures are practically doubled. His administration has piled bureau upon bureau and federal job upon federal job building the most staggering mountain of patronage and political handouts ever conceived by the most conscienceless politician in our national history.

On that record the New Dealers whose political life depends on the President alone, base their call for a "draft Roosevelt" movement.

Never was there so incongruous an idea foisted upon the American people. Congress has voted the last two weeks enormous new sums to be spent over a period of many months to build up the national defense of the country. This money is supposed to pave the way for a navy and air force which will make the country invulnerable to attack by any power—meaning the totalitarian powers, which in turn means attack by Germany. If this result is to be achieved—if America is to build vast armaments in the coming year or two or three, then this money must be spent with all the discretion of the best business men and executives in this country. It cannot be turned into the hands of a lot of crack-brained New Dealers and job-making politicians if we are to buy real defense for the amount expended.

One of the chief reasons this money must be spent by some other than the Roosevelt Administration, is the Roosevelt Administration. For the Roosevelt Administration has led us step by step, deeper and deeper into national debt until we have now come within touching distance of the 45 billion limit, and to put this new spending for national defense into effect Congress will be compelled to raise the debt limit.

Faced with this real emergency the American people should not for one moment toy with the idea of re-electing Roosevelt for a third term. We should and must elect some man who is eminently fitted to give us a real business administration. Instead of re-nominating Roosevelt the Democrats should nominate the best executive in the Democratic party—a man of the calibre of Owen D. Young, whom every American could respect and admire as leader in a time of stress when dollars spent for defense cannot be thrown away. The Republicans should nominate a strong business leader like Wendell Wilkie for the same reason. And the people should elect to office their choice.

The very utterances of Roosevelt the last few days have made him entirely unacceptable as the candidate of the American people for President in the coming months. For Roosevelt has promised that the so-called social gains of his Administration will continue in force. Which means that men would only be allowed to work thirty-five or forty hours a week, and anyone with a grain of common sense knows that if we are to build up a real program of defense everyone must take off their coat and work hours enough to build the planes and ships needed.

Germany did not build up a tremendous armament by means of men working forty hours a week—and we cannot catch up unless we come to our sense and show our willingness to work for what we want. We want to safeguard our homes with adequate defense — nearly every American will agree on that. Then we must elect a president—be he Democrat or Republican—who can give us a business administration.

UNPREPAREDNESS IN 1917

The United States went to war with Germany on April 6, 1917. In December, 1917—eight months later—we had 165,000 men in France, some of whom sailed without rifles and were totally devoid of artillery, airplanes, tanks, machine guns, trench mortars and other munitions and supplies produced in the United States. Through nineteen months Pershing fought our war abroad almost wholly from first to last with guns, munitions, airplanes, hand grenades and materials either borrowed or bought from the Allies in Europe.

The Ordnance Department at Washington spent nearly $4,000,000,000 from April, 1917, to June, 1918, in an effort to build 20,000 guns of all calibers and equip them with munitions. The Civil War was fought for less. Despite this truly vast expenditure and effort, only 133 guns and 600 shells of a single caliber reached Pershing in time for use at the front.

The Allies had perfected an effective hand grenade. The War Department rejected this and placed orders for 20,000,000 distinctive American hand grenades. These, however, were too complicated and Pershing bought hand grenades for our troops from the British.

We spent more than a billion dollars in our 1817-'18 aviation effort. No American fighting plane ever reached the front. A few American-made observation planes appeared in France and these were so badly constructed, clumsy and dangerous that our flyers dubbed them "flaming coffins". The Allies had produced some good fighting planes and sought to turn over to us all plans for expeditious mass production. However, we rejected these plans which had come from the laboratory of actual war and decided to produce typically American motors and planes with wasteful result.

The War Department spent $116,000,000 on gas for our chemical warfare units in France, yet Pershing fired only gas bought from the Allies.

We built three picric acid plants and seven more plants to produce phenol required for picric, and all of these produced nothing for use in the war.

We built a powder plant at Nitro, W. Va., for $70,000,000; a plant at Nashville, Tenn., for $90,000,000 and nitrate plants at Sheffield, Ala.; Muscle Shoals, Ala.; Toledo, Ohio; Perryville, Md., and Connecticut costing $116,000,000 and all of these produced not one pound of powder or nitrates for use in the war. After the war these plants were sold for a salvage value which was a crime against the American taxpayer.

The War Department planned for an army of $4,000,000 men and 86,000 horses. For these were ordered 41,000,000 pairs of army shoes; 50,000 sets of double harness; 110,000 sets of single harness; 945,000 saddles; 2,800,000 halters; 1,500,000 horse brushes, 2,000,000 feed bags 1,000,000 horse covers and 195,000 copper branding irons. These figures are not hearsay; they were developed in the course of a Senate investigation of war operations.

Railroads taken over by the government in 1917 had been paying stockholders a billion dollars annually but the administration deficit at the end of two years was $1,350,000,000. The taxpayers received the deficit, stockholders nothing.

The government spent about $1,200,000,000 on army cantonments for troops in training on the cost-plus plan by which the government paid for all materials and labor, leaving efficiency and economy to contractors. These camps cost millions more than necessary in excess labor and wasted materials.

About $50,000,000 was spent on spruce production for airplanes, yet 92.6 per cent of all spruce used for this purpose was bought independently of the main project. Railroads to carry spruce lumber were built at a cost of about $10,000,000 and were not used.

Some of the port terminals built were never used.

Complacency, inefficiency, tardiness, laxity, gross favoritism to localities and a policy of drift summed up the 1917-18 effort. It was the most hopeless disregard for the national pocketbook known prior to the New Deal.

We are now approaching a somewhat similar period in American history. A mighty effort at rearmament for national defense must be made. The American public will again want action, will undergo sacrifices to obtain action but above all it will demand capacity on the part of those who will be called to serve.—N. Y. Herald-Tribune

ASK The Scientist

QUESTION 1. Are there gold mines in New York State?

ANSWER. New York State has no gold mines, nor has there ever been any in the state. Slight traces of gold have been found around the Adirondacks and more money than has ever been made from the mines has been spent in trying to extract gold, but the state has no paying gold mines.— Dr. Sidman Poole, geologist.

QUESTION 2. Is it possible to freeze things such as fish, small animals and plant tissues; then thaw them and have them live?

ANSWER. We have a considerable amount of data on the freezing of small plants such as bacteria and yeast, and small animals such as protozoa which are usually invisible, consisting ordinarily of a single cell and abounding in the sea and in stagnant water. In many of these cases we find that these animals have been able to live for some time after having been frozen.

If the animal is frozen quickly the process probably will not destroy its tissue. However, if it is frozen slowly, little icicles form in the tissues due to a separation of the salt from the water and the water freezes injuring the tissue. —Dr. Verlus Lindeman, physiologist.

QUESTION. Is it possible to put out fire more quickly with chemicals than with water?

ANSWER. The chemist would rephrase the question to make it read "Is it possible to put fire out more quickly with other chemicals than water" for the chemist knows of water as a chemical.

Carbon tetrachloride and carbon dioxide are chemicals which extinguish fire generally more effectively than does water. The former is about 1.6 times as heavy as water. Both chemicals work by smothering the fire. Their gases surround the flame and cut off the supply of oxygen without which substances cannot burn.

Carbon tetrachloride costs about 65 cents a gallon. That is pretty expensive but is cheap compared to the loss sometimes caused by fire. Carbon dioxide is cheaper but is a little more difficult to handle.

Water acts on fire in two ways. First, it smothers out flames just as does carbon tetrachloride. Second, water decreases the temperature of the material to the point where it will not burn. —Dr. Albert L. Elder, chemist.

QUESTION. 4. Should eggs and bananas be stored in the ice box?

ANSWER. Yes. The only objection that can be raised would be that bananas might impart some of their flavor to butter stored in the same compartment. Even if this did occur, however, it would not be an important matter and I doubt that it would be detected. Certainly, for other considerations, eggs and fruits are entitled to the benefits of refrigeration for it is valuable.

Bananas are not really fit to eat unless they are somewhat blackened. That is an evidence that they are ripe and bananas which are bright yellow or greenish yellow aren't nearly as suitable for food as those that have a moderate amount of black on them. —Prof. Henry N. Jones, bacteriologist.

QUESTION 5. Is there anything to the contention that tea or coffee are better for you if taken without sugar or cream?

ANSWER. No experimental data is available to prove that either cream or sugar when added to tea or coffee make them any better or any worse for us. Dr. Elder.

QUESTION 6. What animal is freeest from disease?

ANSWER. No definite answer to this question is possible. Those types of animals which have a high capacity for reproduction and which travel in flocks are more likely to suffer from extensive epidemics than others.

However, all forms of wild life have attained a nice adjustment to all factors in their development including their parasites so that they are all relatively free from disease.

Man himself, it can be said without hesitation, is the animal which suffers most from disease. If man were forced to depend solely upon his own constitutional resources as wild animals do without the aid and protection of the physician and surgeon and our public health organizations, his greater susceptibility to disease would be much more obvious than it is now.—Dr. Lindeman.

QUESTION 7. How deep is the ocean?

ANSWER. The average depth is between 10,000 and 15,000 feet. Around the continents are great areas called continental shelves where it never goes over 600 feet. There are also holes in the ocean called "deeps" which are much deeper. We have a maximum depth of a little over 35,000 feet, or about 7 miles, in one place off the Philippines that is about the deepest place known at the present time.—Dr. Poole.

QUESTION. Is it dangerous to open a can of food, use part of it, and then leave the rest in the can?

ANSWER. No, it is not dangerous. Of course, any food which is left exposed long will undergo putrefaction and will become more or less unwholesome for human consumption but these changes are no more likely to occur in the original can than they are in some other container.

The new linings that look like a sort of lacquer which are being put in tin cans now do not help to preserve food, however, as some persons mistakenly believe. These linings prevent discoloration of certain types of food but do not affect the matter of preservation.—Prof. Henry N. Jones, bacteriologist.

T[illegible]n has some-th[illegible] There is a [illegible]e cemetery dated in the year of 1437, several years before America was discovered. A friend and I had our attention drawn to it by the caretaker of the cemetery. Strange things, it seems can be found in the vicinity of Addison.

"If it isn't one thing it's the same thing" as Andy would say. It seems that a drive against traffic speeders was started here some time ago. Several warnings were issued and then the arrests started. But, the arrests bogged down recently and the reason seems to be because the two justices are away from town at the same time on occasion and four arrests recently were made and the offenders freed because a justice could not be found Maybe the Town of Addison should have retained the four justice system instead of the two justices and two councilmen.

Well, I see where they are getting ready for the annual Old Home Day celebration in Cameron Mills. Dr. Goff sends us a notice that the celebration will be Saturday, August 3. They sure have good times up there on that day.

Corning and Painted Post people are buying houses here almost as fast as they become vacated or for sale. There have been about 12 real estate changes here in the past three months. It almost makes some people feel that it would be a good investment to build houses to sell in Addison.

Have been meaning to mention this before. At the Hotel Van Curler, the best in Schenectady, the management praised the members of the Addison High School orchestra as one of the best behaved groups of young people ever to stop at the hotel. Another feather in the cap of the young people making that trip.

Have you ever known such a questioning in national political circles so near convention time?

—o—

Jim Farley's post office service is human and hence mistakes do happen. A letter was delivered in the office this week which was post marked in Elmira in January. This just goes to show you that no matter how efficient a system is, there can be breakdown in it at some place along the line.

Addison folks, called "Friendly Towners" in the metropolis will be given an opportunity to do something for Americans in July by entertaining Fresh Air children for two weeks. We have been called upon to aid foreign causes and children and right here comes an opportunity to give a healthful two weeks to a child from the streets of New York and give these children an opportunity to see how Americans outside of New York live. The only expense attached to keeping the children is for food consumed.

The Red Cross drive for funds is still in progress throughout the nation, the funds to be used for relief of women and children in war stricken Europe.

THE RAMBLER

Westfield — A softball diamond here is so planned that it can be flooded for ice skating in the winter.

Mt. Morris—This community will have a Flag Day service with parade and speaking program. Special significance is given to the celebration here owing to this being the birthplace of Francis Bellamy, author of the "Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag".

Perry — The Citizens Chemical Company, volunteer fire company, observed its 50th anniversary June 3.

Trick players, clever fielding and lucky breaks plus a barrage of hits enabled the winners to score in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth innings. The Merchants managed 17 hits with Grange leading the parade with four hits in six trips to the plate and three of these being double-deckers. The barrage drove Anderson from the mound and Cotter relieved him.

The chief feature of the Caton defense was the bullet throwing of Cotter in center field.

Cornell took the Eastern Intercollegiate baseball championship without much trouble this year in a spring day game played Saturday. Penn was the victim of a 4 to 3 game which definitely clinched the championship. Cornell won 10 and lost one in the league.

And while the baseball squad was clinching a championship the Big Red crew was winning the eastern crown with Harvard and Syracuse rivals on Cayuga's waters, also for a spring day crowd. The race was rowed in a driving rain.

Brooklyn still seems to be holding its own in the National League as this is being written, although their margin is slim. Boston has a more comfortable lead in the American League and local fans seem pleased that the Yankees are still in the cellar.

Yale, Harvard and Princeton ruled the roost in many sports for years and when their dynasty ended and they became second raters in national competition, the yowl went up that athletics were suffering, deteriorating and all that. However, other college activities have disproved this. Which is all by way of a preface to the fact that Harvard, insisting on the intercollegiate 4-A athletic meet Saturday, has no real competition and offers nothing in the way of inducement to the cash fans. And it is these cash fans in other communities which have paid the way for the meet. So, the Ivites may lose the meets if enough opposition can develop.

Some of those baseball fans unable to get away in the spring, may get to some big towns during the summer and see double-headers, for several are in the offing owing to bad spring weather.

Steuben Area Scouts to Attend Three-Day Camporee in Bath

The Ninth Annual Camporee of the Steuben Area Council. Boy Scouts of America is to be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday, June 7, 8 and 9 at the Bath fairgrounds. Some one thousand Scouts and Scouters are expected to trek from their homes Friday arriving at the fairgrounds from 4:00 to 6:00 P. M. in troop units prepared for an enjoyable Scout stay covering a three-day period in which they will cook, camp and mingle together in a manner truly democratic and American.

The Bath Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring this activity, has made careful plans to receive this large group of guests in a way which compares most favorably with the best Bath courtesy and friendliness.

Wallace Hill, Scout Executive, announced today that Chief Strong Fox, Carlyle graduate, who for years has toured America and abroad, will appear at the Saturday Campfire Program demonstrating Ceremonial Rites, the War Dance, Medicine Dance and the Adoption Ceremony into the Cayuga Tribes of the Six Nations. Chief Strong Fox will be accompanied by at least five other warriors representing the Cayugas, the Senecas, the Mohawks, the Sioux, and the Shoshone tribes. The Chief comes exceptionally highly recommended, particularly because of his distinguished record as a lecturer and authority since the days when he was associated with "Pop" Warner, "Jim" Thorpe and Chief Bender at the Carlyle University.

Friday evening there will be district campfires. Saturday morning inspection trips will be made to local points of interest. Saturday afternoon from 2:00 to 3:30 P. M., D.S.T., displays of special troop projects are scheduled, with each district playing host to the others and to the public in turn. Saturday evening following a parade through Bath, arranged at the request of the Chamber of Commerce, the traditional council fire is to be lighted and a program of selected stunts, and songs staged highlighted by the demonstration of Chief Strong Fox and his warriors.

Sunday morning Scouts will attend local churches, and the Court of Honor which recognizes Scout achieving Star, Life, Eagle and Eagle Palms will convene. Following the noon meal Sunday and the breaking of camp all troops which have qualified will be presented with Bath souvenir awards for Scouts who have participated in this typi-typical Scout activity.

Parents and friends are welcome, especially for feature events, Fred G. Anderson, commissioner, said today.

Menzo Husted Is Mourned

The death of Menzo K. Husted, on Tuesday evening, occurred after an illness of nine years, when he suffered a severe stroke of paralysis.

Mr. Husted was born on the farm on which he died, March 3, 1873, to John and Angeline Knox Husted. On January 30, 1895, he married Loie Cummins, who survives him with one daughter, Mrs. Waldo Symonds, at whose home he died. The funeral was held from the Smith Funeral Home on Friday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock with the Rev. David H. Davis, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Woodhull. Burial was made in the Woodhull Cemetery. The bearers were: Frank S. Park, Walter J. Reynolds, John Miller, Earle Brown, Roy W. Herrington and William P. Symonds.

Tracy-Lamarr Co-Star in Sun. Avon Feature

Hedy Lamarr definitely became an outstanding dramatic actress in her first American picture background, in "I Take This Woman" opening Sunday for a three-day showing at the Avon Theatre, in which she is co-starred with Spencer Tracy, one of the screen's greatest actors.

Tracy's story will touch every man. Miss Lamarr's will go straight to the hearts of all women, for it is the story of a woman struggling to know just what true love really is. She is a woman driven to despair because the man she loved did not keep his promise. She is caught on the rebound by a great man with a great love, yet, cannot be certain that she no longer loves the man who failed her. And when she finally makes the test of sincere love, her discovery is that which all women are happy to learn. Miss Lamarr, whose startling beauty alone made her the talk of the nation in "Algiers", and who progressed into acting ranks in "Lady of the Tropics", finds in "I Take This Woman" an opportunity which will convince the world that she is an actress and not solely a beauty.
